Fun and Frolic Mark End of Bowling Season

The Mokena Bowling League wound up a very enjoyable 30 weeks of bowling with sweepstake games at Wis's Bowling Alleys in New Lenox Tuesday evening.

At the close of the games, the League members and invited guests journeyed to the Robinson Tavern in Mokena where a fine luncheon awaited them. A most delightful program was presented with Everett J. Cooper in charge as Master of Ceremonies. The program opened with the assembled group singing, "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here."

Mr. Cooper certainly was a past master in the clever handling of his role as M. C., and kept the boys in very high spirits and humor with his clever remarks in connection with the prizes he bestowed on the various members of the League.

Rudy Marschke, winner of the high game of 267 was presented with a tie clasp. Those receiving honorable mention were: James Marti with 250, Stanley Williams, with 237, Willard Marti with 230.

The following clever and significant take offs were sprung on some of the League members with the hope it might aid them over come some of their difficulties:

August Brown was presented with a miniature locomotive and car to assist him to keep on the track, Fred Rauch received an oil can to help his Partner Burkhardt. Hugo Neithammer was reminded of his longest run of year, 37 yards, 2 feet and 8 1-2 inches by being presented with a miniature pair of track shoes replete with "spikes" etc. Geo. Rinke has had a lot of difficulty in climbing out of holes and it was thought a nice little step ladder would be a great aid in helping him to climb out of the cellar and so was given a miniature ladder. Lloyd Warning has had troubles of his own during the bowling season by way of bounces, so he was given a double dribble ball for most counts of the year.

The M. C., had Harold Spiess in a tight spot when he read a letter which a dissatisfied customer had sent Harold in which he claimed a certain paint he had bought from Harold failed to dry.

The boys were given a real thrill when "Lizzie Woofanoff" of the Ozarks appeared a la Gypsy Rose Lee.

The League had a soldiers fund on hand and voted to use it to purchase cigarette lighters for the following league members in service: Messrs. Thran, Chas. and Robt. Liess, Frisch, Hauser, Clark, McMillan, Walsh and Muller.

The following team captains were called on for remarks: Geo. Rinke, Willard Marti, Alvin Sorenson, Chas. Burkhardt and Harold Spiess.

At the close of the program checks for prize money were distributed to the players.

As it is impossible to purchase any metal trophies at the present time, the difficulty was very cleverly overcome by Al Sorenson who sliced a piece off of a regular bowling pin and inscribed the following on it:

1943 Mokena Bowling League Champions Robinson's Tavern N. Robinson, S. Williams, C. Braun, Jim Marti, L. Warning, captain.

At the conclusion of the program card playing was in order.

Auto Trailer Destroyed By Fire On Lincoln Highway

One day last week while Herman Schweser and Christ Braun of Mokena were driving in the state highway truck on Lincoln Highway west of Frankfort, they noticed a fire in the distance. Coming closer they saw an automobile standing alongside the highway and a little further on a burning trailer. A man was trying to put the fire out by throwing mud from a nearby ditch onto the blazing trailer. Mr. Schweser gave the man a bucket and aided in getting the fire out.

The owner of the trailer, his wife and two children had come from Cedar Rapids, Iowa where they had sold their home and were on their way to Ohio. They had packed some furniture, clothing etc., into the trailer.

It is presumed that the driver who had been smoking threw away a cigarette butt, but the breeze blew it into the trailer. Later the driver saw the reflection of the burning trailer in his auto mirror. He had time enough to unhitch the trailer from the automobile, but had no way of fighting the blaze.

The contents of the trailer was destroyed and the trailer was badly damaged. The man said he had no insurance on the loss sustained.

The flames had a good head start and the firemen were handicapped by the lack of water and were unable to save a barn and garage which burned to the ground. A car was run out of the garage in time to save it. It is said three small wells were pumped dry in order to get enough water to check the flames from destroying other nearby buildings. A high wind fanned the flames into a roaring blaze.

JACK KEARNS, who drew in many millions in trade with Jack Dempsey, was explaining how tough it is to rate and rank fighters.

Kearns and Dempsey made the greatest combination in ring history. It was a combination of a smart, shrewd manager, the major master of ballyhoo, and a slashing puncher with an iron chin.

"It all gets down to the matter of styles," Kearns said. "For example, A can lick B, B can trim C and C can murder A. I don't believe Dempsey could have beaten Harry Greb, when both were at their best, for Greb had too much speed and was even rougher than Dempsey was. Yet Greb had trouble with such smaller fellows as Tiger Flowers and several others, who also had speed.

"Against that, I'd say that Dempsey would have had an even chance with Joe Louis for this one reason—he could take a punch around the head better. I'm talking of the Dempsey of Toledo, 24 years old, 185 pounds of punching dynamite, who was also fast.

"There isn't any matter of game-ness or heart mixed up in this. When it comes to taking a hard punch you either can or you can't. Some of the game fighters I ever knew couldn't take a punch.

Tough Ranking

"I'll tell you how tough it is to rank fighters," the always genial Doc continued.

"I couldn't name you a greater fighter than Jack Johnson.

"But Johnson had trouble with Sam Langford, and after their first meeting let Langford alone. On the other hand, Langford, another great fighter, met 139-pound Jack Blackburn seven times without any great success. Sam will even show you some teeth Blackburn knocked out.

"You see where that leads us—from Johnson, weighing 210 pounds, to Blackburn, weighing 139 pounds, and who looked that weight when facing Langford at 170 pounds. Johnson, and I say again that he was one of the greatest I ever saw, out-weighted Blackburn by some 80 pounds, and yet, was no better against Langford than the far lighter and smaller man."

Pound for Pound

"What about Harry Greb, at his best, and Stanley Ketchel?" I asked Kearns. "Pound for pound, were there any two greater?"

"Both were great," Kearns said. "But here again you have two different styles. The Greb that almost assassinated Gene Tunney and Tom Gibbons, before his eyes went bad, was a whirlwind. I'm not sure Ketchel, as good as he was, could have ever nailed him.

"But if you are talking about pound-for-pound stars, I'll slip you a pair—Bob Fitzsimmons and Mickey Walker. Don't forget that Fitz weighed in around 158 pounds for Corbett. And he was world's heavyweight champion after that scrap. Mickey Walker was not even a middleweight. But I know of more than one world's heavyweight champion he could have beaten.

"For another example, I don't believe Joe Louis would have given Dempsey any more trouble than Mickey Walker would have given Jack. Crazy? All right. But we come again to a matter of styles. Mickey Walker would have given Dempsey all the trouble in sight.

The Peacemaker

"Here's a funny story," Kearns said, "that few know. By getting me out of a fight for nothing, I got Dempsey into fights worth millions.

"I was having an argument in a San Francisco barroom with a big Swede named Hansen. An ex-hobo, who had lost most of his fights, was sitting in the corner, all alone. His name was Dempsey. I finally slugged the Swede, and the Swede slugged me back. About that time this kid Dempsey got up, took me by the arm and led me out. The Swede had 60 pounds on me, so I wasn't sore. It was that night we decided to work together, although my pals told me I was cuckoo. I think the first move I made took us both to the top. Dempsey had been right-hand crazy. I turned him into a left-hand hooker by tying his right hand to his side and using only his left. It was Dempsey's left that led on to some $10,000,000 in gate receipts."

Great Lightweights

There has been a rather weird scramble lately involving mixed weights.

By this we mean the top drawing cards of the day—Willie Pep, a featherweight, around 128 pounds—Johnny Greco, a lightweight, with a displacement of 131 pounds—Beau Jack, another lightweight who can make 135 pounds—Fritz Zivic, a welterweight at 147 pounds.

"I don't care what they weigh, as long as the crowd wants to see 'em fight." That's Mike Jacobs' rebuttal

PEAKING OF SPORTS
by Bob McShane

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

WHO was the greatest baseball player of all time?

Ty Cobb was voted that honor last year in a national poll conducted by the Sporting News. But not every authority agrees with that verdict.

Andy Coakley, baseball coach at Columbia university, is one of the dissenters. In a recent story by H. G. Salsinger, widely known Detroit sports writer, Coakley—former pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics—is quoted as saying that "The greatest player of all time was Sockalexis, the Indian. He had the speed, dexterity and agility of Cobb, the fielding genius of Tris Speaker and also his throwing ability. On top of that he had as much hitting talent as any man who ever swung a bat, and probably more. He was a master artist."

Sockalexis, according to Salsinger, was one of the most tragic—and least known—figures of baseball. When he made his big league debut he probably showed more natural ability than any other player before or since. He could hit, field and throw. Within a few weeks he was the most discussed man in the game.

But he lasted only two years. Before he reached the majors he never drank anything stronger than milk. Then, after sufficient urging on the part of a few of the boys, Sockalexis tried a glass of whisky. That was the beginning of the end. He liked the drink and from then on couldn't leave it alone.

Sockalexis became an out and out drunkard. None of the cures proved successful. He would slip away from his guards and wind up in an alcoholic stupor, sleeping in doorways or alleys. Managers finally gave up. He was ruined. He finally drifted out of the game, winding up on an Indian reservation with his own people. His death came in a few years—not long after the public had forgotten him.

Return Honors

Memories of another great Indian athlete were revived recently when two legislators introduced a bill in the Oklahoma legislature to have that body petition the AAU for the return of Jim Thorpe's Olympic medals and his name to the record books.

Such a step would pay proper homage to a legendary character, and it would come during his lifetime. Thorpe at present is employed in the protection service of a Detroit plant.

About 30 years ago Jim Thorpe's name was known in all parts of the world. In 1912 he performed near miracles by winning the pentathlon and the decathlon at the Stockholm Olympic games. The king of Sweden proclaimed the big American Indian the greatest athlete who ever lived.

But Thorpe's name can't be found in the record books today. It was only a short time after the 1912 games that he was found guilty of accepting a salary for playing a game of ball earlier in the summer. Despite the small amount involved—and it was said to have been $5—he was declared a professional.

All Around Man

The marks made by Thorpe have been bettered—but they were made 31 years ago. And few of the modern record holders could fare as well as the big Indian in the all-around test—including the 100 meter run, broad jump, shot put, high jump, 400 meter run, 110 meter hurdles, discus throw, pole vault, javelin throw and 1,500 meter run.

It must not be forgotten that, apart from his great showing in track and field, Thorpe played football at Carlisle Indian school. In fact, he is most widely known for his grid prowess. In the minds of many he is the greatest of all football players.

As a baseball player he had the ability to play with the New York Giants under the late John McGraw. He had one drawback that eliminated him from the majors—his inability to hit curve ball pitching.

Sporadic attempts have been made to return Thorpe's name to the record books and to give him back his trophies. It would be a fitting gesture to honor him thus. Usually such homage awaits the death of the individual most concerned. Then the whole affair has a very hollow ring.

SPORTS SHORTS

Q Cornelius Warmerdam, world's greatest pole vaulter, never enters competition until the bar reaches 14 feet—at which point most of his competitors have been eliminated.

Q Bob Zuppke, former Illinois grid coach, named five newly born lambs on his Champaign, Ill., farm the "Whiz Kids"—after the Illini Big Ten basketball champions.

Q The Boston Braves of 1935 set the all-time mark for the least number of league victories with 39. But keep your eye on the Phils!

WASHINGTON, D. C.

MARTINIQUE APPEASEMENT

How tolerant we have been of the French island of Martinique, for two years thumbing its nose at us with its bombing distance of the Panama canal, is illustrated by a conversation which took place between the state department's Sam Reber and treasury department officials.

Reber had gone to Martinique to negotiate with Vichy Admiral Robert regarding the airplane carrier, cruisers and six oil tankers rusting in Martinique waters. Subsequently, the state department announced that an agreement had been reached with Admiral Robert whereby these ships would be turned over to the U. S. A. Months have passed, however, with no result.

After state department envoy Reber returned, treasury officials asked him:

"What about the gold in Martinique? What is to become of that?" They referred to 25 billions of gold francs still stored in Martinique.

"Oh," replied Reber, "that didn't come up."

"Wasn't it even mentioned?" asked treasury officials, who remembered how France had defaulted on her debts from World War I, still owing us several billion dollars.

"No," replied Reber, "did you think it would be safer up here?"

"Well, it certainly isn't very safe down there," countered the treasury. "We decided," replied Reber, "that we didn't want to do anything which might infringe on the sovereignty of France."

That ended the matter. The gold is still in Martinique, and Admiral Robert, who apparently isn't much impressed by the subtleties of state department appeasement, has continued to thumb his nose at the United States.

RED CROSS DONOR

Several weeks ago Mrs. Roosevelt phoned the Red Cross to say that she wanted to donate blood to the Washington blood bank, but wanted no publicity.

Red Cross officials agreed and the visit went off without any fanfare. Mrs. Roosevelt merely took her place in line with other blood donors, rolled up her sleeve, had a pint drawn from her arm, and went on about her business.

Some weeks later, Red Cross officials were astounded to have Mrs. Roosevelt appear at the blood bank again. This time she had not telephoned, but they felt their pledge of no publicity still held good. Once again, the First Lady took her place with other blood donors, and scarcely anyone knew she had been there.

Red Cross officials wished they could have publicized the incident, because they were in the middle of their drive for funds. However, they did not do so, and this column learned of the facts quite by accident.

PAY BEFORE PATRIOTISM

War Production board officials tell of a heavy snow-and-sleet storm that blanketed Seattle and left the Boeing Aircraft plant snowbound, unable to operate for two days. By the end of the week roads had been opened, and Boeing broadcast a back-to-work call.

Men came to the gates of the plant, but stopped there. And they declined to go further until they could be assured of receiving time-and-a-half pay for week-end work.

"But you haven't put in 40 hours this week," officials retorted.

The men stood their ground, however, and Boeing officials telephoned Washington for advice. They talked with Madame Perkins, who ruled that nothing should be allowed to interfere with production and that the men should be paid.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

U. S. department chiefs have asked for the deferment of very few government workers, but local draft boards, acting on their own, have deferred a tremendous number simply because they worked for the government.

The diplomatic envoys of Honduras, Costa Rica, Salvador, Guatemala, and Nicaragua soon will become ambassadors extraordinary instead of ministers plenipotentiary. This would give all Good Neighbor diplomats the rank of ambassador except Haiti and the Dominican Republic; would also place them ahead of Australia, Canada and New Zealand.

Figures for accidents on the home front continue to be almost as tragic as war casualties. Ned Dearborn of the National Safety Council says that 93,000 Americans were killed and 9,300,000 injured last year.

Of the 26 British camera men who filmed General Montgomery's "Desert Victory," four were killed, seven wounded and six taken prisoner. The film is imperfect and hard on the eyes because it was taken under battle conditions. But it is a great story of British heroism.

Only American journalist to visit the Japs' secret naval base, Truk, is Willard Price. In his book, "Pacific Adventure," he scooped the world on Japan's surreptitious plans to dominate the Pacific from Truk. Recommended as required reading for the state department.

Pasturing Cows for First Time in Spring

Sudden Change in Diet May Lower Milk Output

Although luscious, green grass is one of the best dairy feeds, milk production may drop when cows are first turned out to pasture unless special care is taken to prevent it, says W. B. Nevens, professor of dairy cattle feeding, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

It is best not to turn cows to pasture for the first day until after they have been well fed in the barn, and then to limit the number of hours at pasture for the first two or three days. A sudden change from the feeding of hay, silage and grain mixture to pasture feeding only may cause a sudden drop in milk flow and digestive disturbances.

Fresh, green grass is so palatable in early spring that cows will fill up on it if given the opportunity, but, because of the high water content of the grass, they fail to receive enough nutrients from grass alone to maintain high milk production.

A grain mixture should be fed to higher-producing cows throughout the pasture season. Nevens points out. Holsteins, Swiss and Ayrshires need about one pound of grain mixture for each three pounds of milk produced over and above 30 pounds daily, while Jerseys and Guernseys need about one pound of grain mixture for each 2.5 pounds of milk a day over and above 20 pounds daily.

If cows do not care for grain mixture when pastures are luxuriant, it may prove advantageous to take them from pasture one or two hours before feeding time so that they will consume the mixture more readily. The use of 1½ to 2 per cent of salt in the grain mixture is also helpful. As soon as pasture grasses begin to ripen or become scanty in amount, the rate of feeding may need to be increased.

It may not be a zoot suit but it's the style for smart high school students this season.

Agriculture in Industry

By FLORENCE C. WEED

SHEEP

One industry where there is never a surplus is wool-growing. The United States has 472,000 wool producers and 46,000,000 sheep, yet 40 per cent of the nation's requirements must be imported. Two-thirds of our output comes from the Rocky mountain and West coast states. Chief producers are Texas, California, Wyoming, Montana, South Dakota and Ohio. We also produce each year, about 350,000,000 pounds of shorn wool and 60,000,000 pounds of pulled wool from slaughtered sheep.

After the fleece is removed from slaughtered sheep, the slag goes into glove leather, lining for shoes, sweat bands for hats, and college diplomas. The wool grease or Lanolin is used as a basis for medicinal ointments.

Sheep fat has wide uses in tallow, soap, stearine or oleo oil. As glycerine, it goes into anti-freeze liquids and finds uses in paints, cellophane, cosmetics and bases for polish. Blood is used in serums, medicines, weather-proof glue and animal feed and as a retardant for plaster.

It requires the glands of 100,000 lambs to make one pound of adrenalin, the powerful heart stimulant which has been known to cause a heart once stopped to resume its beating. Sheep intestines become strings for violins, cellos, harps and ukuleles and many other musical instruments. They are much used for surgical ligatures to tie blood vessels and sew wounds during operations. They are much favored because nature absorbs them while the wound is healing. The best quality of casings can be used for strings for tennis rackets.

Farm Notes

Agricultural insecticides and fungicides will be available in sufficient quantities this year for all farm and urban victory gardens.

The churning of sour cream is easier than the churning of sweet cream. You can sour, or ripen cream by keeping it at a temperature of about 70 degrees the day before churning.

Concerto for Two-Finger Typewriter

The most eagerly awaited mail in more than 200 Army and Navy bases from Australia to North Africa is the semi-monthly copy of The Grimy-Gazette. . . . The editor is a Chicago girl named Maggie O'Flaherty. . . . Her brother, in the army, sometime ago sent her this plea: "What we need here more than anything are new jokes. We're telling the same ones to each other 20 times! Ferdigoodnessakes, sis, dig up some for us!"

So Maggie started collecting them—slightly risqué or pure puns. When they were too naughty she laundered them as best she could and left it to the boys to decode them into unexpurgated literature.

Her gag-scouts are friends who travel in parlor cars, and her girl friends bring those they hear in beauty parlors and cafes. . . . Twice a month Maggie puts them in the mails for all over the fighting fronts.

One compliment came from Capt. Tom Griffin in N. Africa. He said: "Thanks for the Gazettes. Laughs are few and far between out here." . . . A Camp Polk, La., Sgt. wrote that her Gazettes solved the problem of getting the men to read the bulletin boards.

Oh, yes. Maggie O'Flaherty has a regular occupation.

She writes radio shows for kiddies.

She is one of the loveliest actresses. . . . Her young actor-groom enlisted on that December 7th and he's been on active duty abroad for over a year. . . . Last night she was at a girl friend's apartment playing gin-rummy with a foursome of gals. . . . When she left the room to answer the phone, one of the girls observed: "Hasn't she the loveliest figure? Amazing how she's kept it so trim since he left."

"And why not?" said Tallulah. "Nobody's been able to make an appointment with her for over a year—except Elizabeth Arden!"

Billy Bryant, the famed Showboat man, was in a Broadway producer's office where a group were planning a dramatic critic, whose review that morning lambasted their new play. . . . The producer sent the critic a telegram which said: "You are selling your comedy at 2c per copy!" . . . To which the reviewer replied: "And you are selling your 2c production at $4.40!!!"

That recalls the time George Bernard Shaw tried to sell a dated manuscript to a weekly magazine, which rejected it with this note: "Our editors see no reason why it should be published by us."

Shaw answered: "Am forwarding a copy in Braille."

Earle Stanley Gardner, the mystery master, was discussing the cooking in New Orleans. He bemoaned the fact that the cuisine there was so good and the variety of rich dishes so tempting, that on his last visit he nearly ate himself to death. . . . "Then you don't like New Orleans?" asked his listener. "Like it!" he ejaculated. "I love it. It's Gout's own country!"

The editors of the Mirror consider this one of their favorite war gags: A Berlin worker asked a bank clerk how to invest his life savings of 1,000 marks. . . . "Buy State bonds," he was advised. . . . "But," he butted, "supposing the State goes broke?" . . . "You forget the Nazi Party will see that it doesn't!" . . . "But," persisted the man, "supposing the Nazi Party collapses?" . . . "Well," was the answer, "isn't that worth 1,000 marks?"

Notes of an Innocent Bystander

The Intelligentsia: The March of Time editors edited out the last two stanzas of the ditty, "Stalin Wasn't Stalin" (rendered by the Golden Gate Quartet), which have to do with the American Eagle and British Bulldog helping the Russian Bear. . . . Tom O'Connor's deft piece in PM, which castigated E. James Smythe, the Bund and Klan supporter, was the week's tops in lowdown reporting. . . . Roger Butterfield of Life says the piece on Al Schmid, the marine hero, couldn't have been done sans the help of the Philadelphia reporters who dug it up originally. . . . Time has its own intelligence bureau—off-the-record statements and background on stories and people, which are distributed for the personal observation of Time editors only. . . . Quentin Reynolds probably is in Russia, having flown there longer than a fortnight ago. . . . 93 newspapers suspended publication in 1942.

Those who plan giving parties in their homes for servicemen might follow the policy of the Stage Door Canteen in New York.

The Canteen workers have learned the songs the servicemen do not want to hear. They include: "Miss You," "Dear Mom," "We Did It Before," "Remember Pearl Harbor," "White Cliffs of Dover," "Letter From Home," "God Bless America," "This Is Worth Fighting For" and "My Buddy."

All of them, it is explained, "are depressing."

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

DOAN'S PILLS

MURDER at PIRATES' HEAD

By ISABEL WAITT W-N-U RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Judy Jason, who is telling the story, receives an anonymous letter enclosing $800 and asking her to bid for an abandoned church to be auctioned the next day. She finds in an old chest, the body of a man identified as Roddy Lane. The body disappears a few hours later. A fish shed burns, apparently killing an old man named Brown who is supposed to have lived there. Judy finds Roddy Lane's diamond in the handbag she left at the church the day of the auction. Lily Kendall is found dead, with Hugh Norcross' scarf around her neck. Albion Potter gives Judy a picture of the church he has just finished.

Now continue with Judy's story.

CHAPTER XV

I kept a good lookout, too. I could see Uncle Willie's bent figure down at the bridge. In the living room, cooler than the porch, the men were gathered, still talking things over.

Finally, they decided to get out the least damaged boat and try to put it into shape. Victor agreed; anything was better than idly waiting. Mr. Quincy could sit on the beach and wave his flag to try to attract a passing craft.

"Not the beach!" For the first time I saw Mr. Quincy staring at Victor with genuine suspicion. "Beach isn't visible, and you know it. Anybody could finish me off down there. No, thanks. I'll stay where I can be seen by all. Then, if some killing occurs, you can't blame me." He told me afterward, when the men had left the room, he'd really begun to think Quade was our killer. Stark fear had replaced his former bantering manner.

"At first, I only half suspected him," he said. "But it's all too pat. He turns up from nowhere and trouble begins. He could have done all of it. The letter, the money, the fire and the killing. He found Miss Kendall's body. Judy, stay with your aunt. I don't trust Victor Quade."

"Well, I do!" I returned with some heat. "I guess a woman's instinct is worth more than—"

"Didn't do that unfortunate Kendall woman much good, did it?"

"You're letting this get you, Mr. Quincy. Perhaps I did it. Perhaps you did. But I'm sure Victor Quade—"

"So that's how it is!"

If I'd felt the blood flooding my neck before, it crept all over my face now. "I'll get you a red tablecloth from the linen closet and tie it around a broom. That do?"

"Nicely," he said. "Then will you wheel me down the ramps, right where I tell you?"

"Uh-huh," I clipped up the stairs. The linen closet adjoined the bathroom. I found the faded old cloth I wanted and was about to run down again when the sound of crying reached me from up the hall. Poor Bessie Norcross! No wonder she couldn't sleep.

I tapped on her door. The weeping stopped immediately. I tapped again. The least I could do was to give her her brother's message. And the least she could do, I thought, was to learn how he was. I tapped a bit louder.

"Miss Norcross!" Rap-rap-rap!

"Bessie, it's Judy."

I heard her stirring and waited, but she didn't unlock the door.

"Bessie, I've a message from Hugh. Open the door."

I could hear her bedsprings creaking again. Then footsteps. She came close to the door. This time the crying commenced again.

"I'm all right, Judy. For heaven's sake, go away. And give this to the police when they come."

Amazed, I waited for her to open the door. Instead, I heard a shoving sound on the floor, and saw at my feet a white envelope. I picked it up and said, "Did you say—police?"

"That's what I said. Have they come yet?"

"No," I said, backing away, as a feeling of horror came over me.

"Well, they will. And they'll keep me awake hours asking questions, questions, questions! I've got to sleep, and the medicine won't work." She was fairly raving at me. "Hugh took the rest of it away. Oh, Judy, beg him to give you just one of those veronal—darn him!"

I was already heading for the stairs. "I'll try!" But I had no intention of getting veronal or anything else. What kind of a person was she to help trap her own brother? I never heard of anything so cold-blooded in my life. Her tone, when she said Hugh had taken her dope stuff, had been full of hate. He was such a good brother to her, and now, in his necessity, she not only locked herself in but helped the police.

"Come here, quick! Bessie Norcross thinks her brother's guilty! Look, she's written to the police."

Victor shushed me when I told him about Bessie's letter. "Bless you! Want the crew upon us?" He wagged his dark head at the men who were standing around trying to figure how to get the boat out of the barn loft.

Without a moment's hesitation Victor tore open Bessie's letter. I was tickled mauve that he dared, yet I couldn't help wondering why he didn't let Hugh do it. A fleeting suspicion crossed his mind. If Hugh were right and Victor guilty—!

"End justifies the means, Judy."

He began to stroll away from the barn, while from the piazza Thaddeus Quincy waved a red cloth from the end of his cane and yelled at me.

"Just a minute!" I yelled back at him. "Oh, please, Mr. Quade! Does she say he did it?" I said to Quade.

Victor gave a low whistle. "This beats the Dutch! Listen, Judy. It's a confession."

"Not Bessie!"

"Bessie," Victor made a quick survey to be sure he wasn't overheard and then commenced to read in a low tone:

"I, Elizabeth Norcross, being of sane mind, do hereby of my own accord, on this Fourth of July, confess to the murder of Rodney Lane Jr., and Lily Kendall. But I did not have anything to do with the death of that poor old man recluse, they call Brown, whom I never even saw, nor the burning of his shack, nor the explosion at the bridge. I feel sure, though, there were no fireworks at the Head the night before the Fourth, both were accidents. The bridge may have collapsed; I don't know."

"But my brother, Hugh, did not have a hand in any of this murder business, nor know that I had. He is entirely innocent in every way, although several things might look suspicious. I can account for all three: The initialed golf club, the blue scarf and his being seen before the crime of Roddy's death, in the vicinity, I mean, by Judith Jason and Thaddeus Quincy. He told one lie—to save me. He said, when he went out, having missed me, last night, about the time Judy spoke to a shadow, that he saw my light come on in my room, so he knew I was all right. He couldn't have. My room is on the other side of the house. Go look for yourselves. He did it to protect me."

He fell down the stairs and must have struck his head on the granite floor.

We glanced at the inn bedroom and saw she was telling the truth. Then continued: "Now, about the spot on my coat. It's blood. Hugh tried to save me there, also. He didn't borrow any turpentine from Mr. Potter. I did. I tried to clean off the blood, but made it worse, I guess. Mr. Potter's door was open a crack. He'd gone to town. I took the bottle from his table."

"Please, won't somebody help me down the ramp!" I heard Mr. Quincy holler again, but this time I did not turn around.

"Let him quit," Victor said, resuming the letter.

"To make this horrible story short, I'll say that my motive was vengeance. Five years ago Roddy Lane jilted me after a summer's courtship in this very place. My brother was just a boy, but he saw me have a nervous breakdown and vowed he'd get even with Lane some day. I'd reserved that same pleasure for myself. I take the Rockville paper just to keep track of Roddy. When the auction of the church was advertised I hoped he might show up. Got Hugh to vacation here, ostensibly to prove I could again visit the scene of my broken heart and show him the wound didn't bleed any more. Hugh fell for it. He's been a good brother to me. I told him the sight of the Castle, where I'd laughed and danced and had my romance, didn't give me a pang any longer. It wasn't true."

"When Roddy walked into the dining room at Gerry's, all the old bitter-sweet love came back again. And he didn't even pretend to recognize me! I'd never wronged him. I don't have to bare my heart any more. The old adage about a woman scorned is enough. I determined to go through with it. He'd never live to break another trusting heart."

"I left the table, passing but not speaking to him. I couldn't bear it if he greeted me like an old friend, in that casual, sneering way of his,

which was the way he treated his castoffs. I'd studied his career and found it full of things he'd neglected to mention, such as his wife! I'd never dreamed he was already married while making love to me."

"I picked up the club Mr. De Witt had been using on the lawn and went for a stroll. Everybody, nearly, had gone to town, so I thought. Hugh was in his room. I saw Roddy coming down the Castle drive. He wanted to talk to me, he said, to tell me how miserable he'd been—the mistake we'd made of our lives. Could we ever forgive ourselves! And begin again!"

"I had to steel myself against his passion. All the old feeling came rushing back. I was beginning to melt like sugar. He had to get something out of the church basement before it was auctioned off, he said. I asked him if he'd meant it when he said at supper he was going to buy it. "Buy it? What for?" he said. "I only came to the Head because I knew you were down here." I knew that was a lie. Hugh and I had only just arrived the week before, quite unheralded. We went into the church—the door was unlocked—and he told me to wait but I followed him. "Roddy, are you asking me to marry you again?" I said. He took me in his arms and kissed me. For a minute I was happy. Then he said: "No more wedding bells for me. Sort of companionate, maybe, darling." We were standing at the top of the basement stairs. I was so mad I gave him a push away from me. He fell down the stairs and must have struck his head on the granite floor. Ugh! I can see him now—all smashed. I dragged him to the chest and somehow got him in. I forgot about the golf club, which must have fallen down into the pool of blood. I heard somebody on the steps—Miss Kendall, or maybe it was Judy and Mr. Quincy. Anyway, I ran out the basement door and home. Judy will remember she heard the door squeak, so I must have not quite closed it. I didn't know what to do. I considered jumping into the sea but hadn't the courage."

"Poor Bessie!" I murmured.

Victor turned the last page.

"I never intended Lily Kendall any harm. She was a bore and a pest, always bragging about her niece—that Gloria Lovelace, and trotting out her pictures. Gloria was her whole life, but I hadn't come to the Massachusetts coast to hear about her. Hugh and I couldn't take a walk but it was Gloria all the way. I knew Lily had seen me earlier that fatal evening when she'd gone to watch the sunset, but before reaching the church, of course. I knew she'd seen me wearing Hugh's blue scarf around my head. I'd lost the scarf while I was with Roddy. When you all went to the bridge to connect with the milkman, Lily didn't go. Neither did I. We took a walk together toward the sea. She told me she'd picked up my scarf and thrown it into the ocean, but the wind had blown it back into the Pirate's Mouth. She accused me openly of killing Roddy. I got her to show me where, and gave her a little push, too. She fell you know where, and I rolled her toward the slit in the rock, where she struck. The handkerchief was there, all right, but I didn't tie it around her neck. It slipped out of my fingers beyond reach into the crevice. I had nothing to fish it out with, and hoped when the tide turned it might be washed away. But some wretch tied it around her neck to make it look as if my brother did it. I didn't strangle her. She died, just as Roddy did, from the fall. If she hadn't said I killed Roddy because he jilted me I wouldn't have pushed her in. That word jilted finished me."

"She's crazy!" I gasped.

"Oh, no," Victor said. "Just a little more of it." And he read the last pitiful explanation of that awful night.

"I was afraid I might be seen, so I crept out of the Pirate's Mouth, up the other side, the steep way, crawling around the cliff back of the church, and down to the strip of beach to the woods back of Gerry's barn. I got across the road to the inn and back to my room without being seen. And that's all. I'll try to answer police questions—if I'm awake. But, before God in Heaven, my brother is innocent!"

"How dreadful!"

Victor sighed. "Yes, how dreadful. What does she mean—if she's awake? Does she take sleeping medicine all the time?" He jerked around and started back. "Hurry, Judy. She's pretty desperate."

"Don't worry. She begged me to beg Hugh for another pill or tablet, or however veronal comes. And I heard her say he'd refused to give her any—darn him. Her words, not mine."

"How she must love him!"

"Sounded pretty mad at him through the door."

"Poor girl. No wonder she wanted sleeping tablets after writing all this."

"Wasn't she brave to confess!"

"Confess? Why, you innocent little baby! This document lets Bessie off scot free."

PETER AND JOHN IN GETHSEMANE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:36-46; John 18:1-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation. Matthew 26:41.

The morning of that great day when atonement was made for the sins of all the world was nearly at hand. In the darkness of the night, following the institution of the Lord's Supper, and the words and prayer of our Lord (John 15-17), He and His disciples came to the Garden of Gethsemane. Taking three of His disciples He went deeper into the shadows to pour out before the Father His soul, "exceeding sorrowful even unto death."

It is a sacred scene, and we feel a sense of awe and reverence as we approach it, feeling that we too would prefer to tarry outside the garden, did we not feel that we should try to understand a little better what took place that night.

We are especially concerned with Peter and John, who with James shared our Lord's sorrow up to a point, and then so sadly failed Him.

We note that they had a

I. High Privilege (Matt. 26:36-38).

To be asked by Christ to stand by in this crucial hour was to be entrusted with one of the greatest privileges a man could ever know. As there swept over His holy soul a great tidal wave of sorrow unto death, He wanted and needed their fellowship. As Dr. McLaren puts it, He "grazed the very edge" of human endurance. "Out of the darkness He reaches a hand to feel the grasp of a friend, and piteously asks these humble lovers to stay beside Him; not that they could help Him bear the weight, but that their presence had some solace in it. His agony . . . they could not bear with Him, but they could watch with Him, and that poor comfort is all He asked."

Undoubtedly they intended to do it. Jesus bore witness that their spirit was willing (v. 41), but in spite of that, and all the boasting of Peter at the table that he would never desert Him, they failed Him in His hour of need. It was

II. Sad Weakness (vv. 39-46).

Our Lord's prayer showed great faith in God the Father, the terrific recoil of His soul against being blackened with the burden of sin, and a complete surrender to the Father's will. Here was true denial of self and submission to God, but it was nonetheless an appalling experience for our sinless Lord. So He went back for fellowship with His three trusted friends—and they were asleep.

Jesus recognized that the weakness of the flesh caused them to forget and slumber. We may profit by a little closer scrutiny of the scene. Was it just a physical tiredness? That doubtless entered in, but was not Jesus even more tired than they could possibly be? Was it not rather the weakness of indifference? They did not yet fully believe that their Lord was about to die. That was why they were quickly scattered in unbelief when He did die. This matter was not so serious in their sight, so it was not difficult to yield to the tired body and the deep, quiet darkness, and fall asleep.

We are in much the same position. Danger—grave, spiritual danger—threatens our souls, our families, our nation. We who call ourselves Christians have declared our readiness to stay awake and alert. But we have become at home in this world, the enemy soothes us with the assurance that all is well, time goes on and nothing too serious happens. So, we go to sleep right in the midst of danger, and sleep on even though the Master awakens us again and again.

But now the scene changes. The mob has come to take Christ, and then the sleepy Peter, now much awake, indulges in

III. Foolish Courage (John 18:10-12).

The act of Peter was courageous, even to the point of recklessness. What chance had he against a great armed multitude? It was the natural impulse of a loving heart, but it was misguided and foolish.

What did he think to accomplish—to deliver Jesus from those who would crucify Him? That would have meant no death on the cross and no redemption. The hour for the offering up of the Son of Man as Saviour had come. Peter might have learned that with our Lord in the garden, but then he was asleep. Christ who had hitherto walked right through the crowd of enemies (Luke 4:30), now submitted. In the dark hours of the night He had been prepared to drink this bitter cup (v. 11).

We need to learn from this experience of Peter's lest we make the same mistake. There are all too many in the Church who are asleep as far as its spiritual struggles and opportunities are concerned, who are eager to wield a reckless sword in outward conflict. In their folly and ignorance they do more harm than good, and yet they think they are working for Christ.

THINGS for You TO MAKE

ANIMATED cutlery, dishes, glassware, pots and pans, bring their infectious gaiety to a new set of tea towels. They offer a mixing bowl parade, a knife, fork and spoon dash, the soup spoon dance, and four more equally interesting tea towel designs, with a trio of teaspoons as motif for a matching panholder. Army Dogs to Rescue

U. S. army dogs are specially trained in rescue work. Upon locating a wounded man, the dog returns to headquarters, indicates his find by chewing his "brinsell," a short wooden stick that hangs from his collar, and leads stretch-bearers to the spot.

Just a Natural Curiosity To Know One's Position

The manager of Super-Colossal Pictures entered the office.

"Get out!" he howled at a young man sitting there. "While I'm boss I'll not tolerate any loafing around here."

"I beg your pardon," said the young man, "but I don't work here. I just came in looking for a position."

"Then you're engaged," growled the manager, "and now you're fired! Get out!"

The young man, surprised, picked up his hat and turned to the manager. "Do you mind telling me," he asked, "just what sort of a job I had before you fired me?"

Do you know the new regulations on packages sent to men in the service? Here they are: You can send packages to soldiers anywhere in the U. S., although there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men; and you can send packages to men in the Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines, wherever they are. And when you send that package from home, remember—the gift men in the service always appreciate is cigarettes. And the favorite with men in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines is Camel (based on actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens). So stop in at your local dealer today—and mail him a carton of Camels.—Ady.

IN THE COAST GUARD they say:

50,000 Expected at Easter Sunrise Service In Soldiers' Field

Chicago's Easter sunrise service, best attended of the hundreds of such dawn programs from the Atlantic to the Pacific, is expected to draw more than 50,000 persons to Soldier's Field at 6:30 a. m. April 25, according to Harry G. Saulnier, chairman of the central committee of 20 laymen arranging the meeting. Almost 400,000 persons have attended the previous ten services, scores coming from Tinley Park and vicinity.

Speaker at the Resurrection Day program will be the Rev. Peter Rees Joshua of Aurora, Ill., well-known evangelist who served the allies as an infantry captain in World War I and then turned to the Presbyterian pulpit. Joshua saw action in France, Belgium and the Balkans with the Welsh regiment in the 42nd division of the British army, and was among the first soldiers to enter Jerusalem when the holy city fell without a shot to General Allenby. Last year he spoke at the Medicine Lake, Minn., dawn services.

The sponsoring committee has arranged a 15 minute preliminary program, beginning at 6:15 a. m. to encourage early arrival. Public transports will be somewhat more crowded than usual, since half of the automobiles usually used for driving have given way to other travel. The committee has been assured by defense transportation officials, however, that there is nothing unpatriotic about the use of automobiles, if public transports are not convenient, but is urged that worshippers fill their cars. A record Easter turnout is expected for two reasons, firstly, the late Resurrection Day date, the first time since 1880 that it has fallen on April 25 and the last time in this century; and secondly the spiritual urgency of the times which has deepened the need for a united Christian testimony.

Taking part both in the preliminary, and the main service will be the Glenview chapel symphonic choir, composed of 40 sailors under the baton of Maurice Dobbins, who before his enlistment was instructor in music at Wheaton College. Additional selections by the Wheaton College Ambassadors' quartet, which sings regularly on the Mid-West Church of the Air. Guest soloist will be Wm. F. Burcaw, former opera singer, whose bass baritone voice has previously lifted Soldier Field religious assemblies to inspirational heights.

The powerful Hammond electric organ will be played by Prof. Douglas Fisher of the WMBI radio staff while Marvin Mattson of the Mid-West Bible Church, will lead congregational singing. There is no admission charge.

According to weather bureau officials, sunrise is scheduled at 5:45 a. m. with daybreak 45 minutes earlier. On their arrival at Soldier Field worshippers will be greeted by the message Christ is Risen, in white letters 14 feet high and 10 feet wide against a background of 350 Michigan evergreen trees. The decorating committee, directed by Dr. Paul Bennett of Cook County hospital staff, works the whole day before Easter to get the field in readiness.

Streamlined promotion calls the service to Chicago's attention annually. Elevated platform displays, street card bulkheads and cards, displays in railroad and elevated stations, outdoor billboards, thousands of broadsides and tens of thousands of pluggers, newspaper and magazine publicity, and spot radio announcements are all employed.

The committee is composed entirely of laymen, with the single exception of a seminary professor who formerly was a newspaperman. Since the turn of the year they have met almost weekly, planning the Chicago service, in a tiny office at 648 S. State St., in the heart of the slum district adjoining Pacific Garden Mission. Before the war effort put a premium on Loop Office Space, various owners would donate a suite of rooms for the committees use previous to Easter but this year the group moved into action in shoebox quarters that in no wise minimized enthusiasm for the service.

AMERICAN STYLE

The frenzied paperhanger from Austria must now be suffering from acute insomnia. His vision of world empire is fading. His armies, once believed invincible by many, are beginning to know defeat. Many of his "supermen" are now tired and disillusioned.

And while Herr Hitler tosses sleeplessly, we wonder whether he realizes the enormity of his mistake in neglecting his railroads. For even in a land of "supermen," rolling stock must be kept in condition; engines should be periodically overhauled; roadbeds must be maintained; bombed railway centers must be given instant attention. The Nazi overlord has neglected these things. In doing so, he has violated a war principle as old as war itself—to maintain lines of supply and transportation so that armies may have quick mobility.

How thankful America should be that management foresaw the necessity of modernizing the nation's railroads. They are now in "fighting trim," and we are determined to keep them that way. ROCK ISLAND, for example, has for years pursued a comprehensive Program of Planned Progress. We have invested vast sums every year to make it one of the nation's modern rail systems, and we shall continue to keep it so.

Ours is the herculean task of moving fighting men and the materials vital to victory. War found us ready, and we shall carry on until victory is ours.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker
says: OF TORPEDO SQUADRON 8

"To these boys should go the undying gratitude of every man, woman and child within the boundaries of the United States of America for their daring accomplishments and loyalty to the cause, that will go down in history as one of the outstanding epics of World War II.

"Few of us can visualize the strength of character and courage needed and displayed by the members of Torpedo Squadron 8 in their willingness to help destroy a vicious enemy when death faced them.

"Let every American—man, woman and child—on the home front try in his humble way to equal the efforts of these men, because none of us can ever hope to approximate their sacrifices."

They didn't count the cost

Every American knows the suicide saga of Torpedo Squadron 8. How it lost all 15 planes and all but one of its 30 men in a mission which helped produce our great victory at Midway. It was these boys who found the Jap fleet. Who radioed its position. And without the necessary fighter and high altitude bomber support dove to the attack.

This week the big 2nd War Loan Drive is on! Our country is not asking us to give or even risk our lives. She simply wants us to lend her money. And this 13 billion dollars must be raised during April to assure more torpedo squadrons—more victories like Midway.

It's true we've done a good job so far. But this war is far from won. The Japs are building new airfields in Kiska on American soil. Submarines are sinking our supply ships within sight of our own shores.

It's a long way from Casablanca to Berlin, or Tokio.

While you help your country you will help yourself. Your purchases of War Bonds help retard inflation. They are as safe as your government. And when Victory has been won you will have saved the money you need for a new home, new car, new luxuries.

You may say, "But I've been buying War Bonds. Paying higher taxes. Giving up conveniences." If you think you're doing all you can, recall the last words of Commander Waldron to Squadron 8: "Of course, we will strike regardless of the consequences." Unquestionably answering this new call will mean more self-denial. Giving up more luxuries. Additional inconveniences. But on the hot sands of Tunisia, in the steaming jungles of New Guinea, in that "hell-hole" at Guadalcanal... other men are doing more.

Make your IDLE dollars FIGHTING dollars!

DANGERS IN ABSENTEEISM BROUGHT HOME TO ROCK ISLAND WORKERS AT VICTORY RALLY AT SILVIS SHOPS

The peril of absenteeism, the industrial gremlin of World War II was brought home to over 1500 officials and workers of the Silvis, Ill. shops of the Rock Island Lines recently as they were addressed by representatives of the U. S. Navy at a rally for victory held at the plant.

Included among the speakers were Lieutenant A. B. Maley, Naval Officer of Chicago, and two young seamen, John Erby and Eugene Doyle, both wearing the gold star as survivors of the sunken cruiser, Chicago.

"There is no absenteeism aboard a ship," declared Erby. "Men of the Navy are at their battle stations four hours on and four hours off seven days a week."

The two sailors told in detail how they narrowly escaped death during a terrific naval battle with the Japanese, and how they were picked up by rescue craft after swimming in oil covered water for an hour.

"We shot down all the Japanese torpedo planes which attacked us," said Doyle, a curly headed youth of twenty one. "Erby and I, like every other man were at our damage control stations, for forty-eight hours, working and fighting with only an occasional cup of coffee and a sandwich."

"When I was picked up I was so tired and sleepy that I didn't even notice that they had clipped all my hair off because it was soaked with oil," recalled Erby. "I was sure surprised when I saw my hair was gone."

The scene of the rally, held in one of the huge shops, as hundreds of workers found vantage points on cranes, locomotives, ladders and girders in order to see and hear the officers and enlisted men, railroad officials, and labor leaders, was an inspiring example of the vital bond that must exist between the home front and the battle front.

The closeness of this bond was emphasized by Lt. Maley when he declared:

"Forty five percent of the personnel of the US Navy comes from and is trained in this area, the Middle West, a rather unusual fact inasmuch as the sea coasts are so remote from here."

"Moreover," Lt. Maley continued, "about one-third of all the materials and supplies required all over the world by the US Navy are produced and manufactured by people and firms in this middle-western region. For the movement of vast mountains of this material, the Navy depends upon the railroads."

"Because of the fidelity of men like ourselves to their important job of keeping railroad motive power and equipment in running condition, that material has been reaching our forces promptly and regularly, and your Navy, upon which you can and do depend, depends and relies on everyone of you to continue to work every day you can to 'keep 'em rolling.'"

Lt. Maley also pointed out that it is because of the importance of industry, and transportation in winning the war, Navy officials and enlisted men have volunteered to visit these centers to do their part in bringing home to workers the peril of absenteeism to victory. Erby and Doyle, he said had taken time off their short "survivors" leave to take part in the rally.

Other speakers included: T. J. O'Shaughnessy, Public Relations Officer, L. D. Richards, Supt. Silvis Shops, P. J. Colligan, retired Supt. of the shops, and Geo. Adams, representing the workers.

WE-ALL

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, OUR COMMANDER - IN - CHIEF, CAN BE CERTAIN THAT WE-ALL ARE IN BACK OF HIM, DETERMINED TO PROTECT OUR COUNTRY, OUR FORM OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE FREEDOMS WHICH WE CHERISH.

Some Americans are paying the cost with their lives. Others are buying as many Defense Stamps and Bonds as they possibly can—every day. Are you doing your share?

Let's GO! All Out for the 2ND WAR LOAN

Aid to Enemy

"Any American who wilfully neglects to pay his taxes on time or to invest every cent he can in War Bonds is surely giving aid and comfort to the enemy . . . We have a job to do and we are all called for service to our country. Our dollars are called to service too. Let us all ask ourselves, 'Shall we be more tender with our dollars than with the lives of our sons?'" — Secretary Morgenthau.

No American wants this war to go one minute beyond the time we can bring it to a victorious end. To hasten that victory—to save possibly the lives of millions of our boys on our far flung fronts—it is imperative that every American do his part in the Second War Loan. There is an investment to fit every purse. The most you can do is little enough compared with the sacrifice offered by our boys in service. They give their lives —you lend your money.

The following is a V-Letter received by Mrs. Inez Werner from her brother Mike who is somewhere in New Guinea.

"Dear Sis: I received your V-mail of Jan. 22 and was glad to hear from you. We got a bunch of mail. It was the only mail we got for nearly a month. We are getting along pretty good. It really rains hard and often here. I don't believe it ever misses a day. Last night it really poured and it was so dark you could scarcely see your hand if you held it front of your face. We built us a gas stove with a 5 gal. can, a faucet, a piece of rubber hose and a short piece of pipe. It burns gas and works good. One of the boys is making a foot locker out of old boxes. Everyone thinks the boys in our tent are foolish to fix up. But it keeps us occupied and we are always thinking up new ideas to improve our home. We have nothing to read and no movies and we get restless. We work nearly every day, but we have several hours to ourselves. I never played so much cards in my life. I hope you are all well at this time and in good spirits. Mike."

The family of Edmond Ebert have received word that he is somewhere in north Africa. Following is his new address. Pfc Edmond W. Ebert, 36353288, 460th Engr. Depot Co., APO 700, Care Postmaster, New York City.

House Rejects Tax Proposals in Wild Session

The house of representatives climaxes a fiery session by refusing to accept the Ruml plan to forgive ten billion on 1942 income taxes to put taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis, as well as the administration's collect-at-the-source tax bill which would have started collecting 20 per cent from paychecks on July 1. The ways and means committee was ordered to bring out a new bill that would help put the nation's income taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis. In this photo, made after the votes had been counted, Representative Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, supporter of the administration tax plan, and its leader, is congratulated by Representative Frank Carlson of Kansas, leader of the Ruml forces, who had embodied its proposals in his plan.

Blind Children Taught Gardening

Combining a patriotic duty with healthful exercise and occupation for blind children, the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind is converting most of the 15 acres of flower beds which adorned the campus of the school into a victory garden. Here we see the youngsters at work in the future garden. They work in roped-off lanes to prevent hurting each other with the garden tools.

Peaceful Meal in African War Zone

Axis nuisance raids in North Africa are so frequent that the pilots and ground crewmen of this advanced U. S. bomber base in Algeria find it much more comfortable to have their meals in slit trenches, where they can go right on eating while the Jerries or Eyties are having their fun. This base is near the Tunisian border.

General Patch Decorated in Guadalcanal

Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch (right) is shown as he pinned the Navy Distinguished Service Medal on Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, in command of U. S. troops at Guadalcanal, shortly after the army relieved the marines here. Looking on are Brig. Gen. R. L. Spragins, corps chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. William R. Woodward, artillery chief.

Food for Thought

Fly From China

Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to London, and Gen. P. H. Whang, military attaché to the Chinese embassy in Washington, are shown after their arrival in Miami, Fla., from Chungking. They flew from the Chinese capital by army plane. Dr. Koo was en route to London, but visited Washington first.

Jungle Fighter

The U. S. army jungle issue is something to behold—when it's visible. It is designed not only to conceal, but to meet other necessities in the dense growth of the tropics. This soldier is all set for island fighting. If it's raining he has his poncho to drape around him. His face is protected from insect pests by a mosquito netting.

Valet Service

Count Fleet, the equine aristocrat favored to win the 1943 Kentucky Derby, gets attention at Belmont Park, N. Y. He is the son of Reigh Count, who won the Derby in 1928.

High-Flying Warbirds That Will Help Bring Victory

Picture at top gives you a fair idea of the B-24 Liberator bomber, which is shown with the entire 174-man crew which flies and maintains the sky giant. Eighty-two men—count 'em—put an approximate seven tons weight on its expansive wings. Below, left: The Corsair. This sleek, deadly sky raider is one of the newest of U. S. navy fighting planes. Note long narrow fuselage and the inverted gull wings of this carrier-based fighter. Center: The Sea Gull, our navy's newest pontoon-equipped scout observation plane. Can be launched by catapult from battleships and cruisers. Right: The Avenger, the navy's new torpedo bombers, capable of hedge-hopping waves to press home a torpedo attack and flying high above enemy targets to drop tons of high explosives. Carrier-based.

As Allied Forces Put Heat on Gen. Rommel in Tunisia

U. S. Planes on Way to Harass Enemy

An unpleasant sight for Axis eyes is this cargo of planes on the way to battlefields, where they will harass the enemy. As they near their destination the accompanying vessels of the convoy swing astern of the carrier with its precious cargo. Army mechanics can be seen giving the planes a final checkup.

'Yippees' on Patrol

Sailing ships, too, are being used by the U. S. navy in the fight against enemy submarines. Ships like these, known as "Yippees," patrol the inshore waters.

Grand Old Man Feels Call of Spring

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia A's, grand old man of baseball, feels the call of spring and steps up to take a cut at the ball during training session at Wilmington, Del., baseball park. Bob Swift catches for the "boss," while Felix Mackewicz and Jo Jo White look on.

Follows Betsy Ross

Seated in the same chair used by Betsy Ross when she made the original American flag for George Washington, little Margaret McCloskey, four, descendant of Betsy Ross, sews a Red Cross flag.

RAISE More Food— and Save It All!

Uncle Sam Wants GARDENS!

• Uncle Sam insists that we all have Victory gardens this year—big ones and small ones, in town and country.

Plan your garden now, or join in the plans of your neighbors. Grow your own vegetables because the chances are you won't be able to buy them at the corner grocery. Gardens mean fresh food all summer and a food reserve stored away for winter. Gardens mean Health —lowered food costs—and practical PATRIOTISM!

Ask us about International Harvester's 84-page booklet, "Have a Victory Garden." It's a dandy—packed with helpful information on soil, seedbeds, fertilizers, hotbeds, cold frames, planting, cultivating, weed control, insect and disease control, harvesting, winter storage, etc.

Let's all garden for Victory and save all we raise.

Come in and ask us about International's 84-Page Booklet, "Have A Victory Garden."
